To participate, engage and collaborate with this global community of standards and help disseminate the sustainability concepts, ideias and framework for responsible corporate sustainability.

We believe in sustainability as a safe way to create a world free from war, hungry and social injustices. Since we met the GRI, through the Instituto Ethos, we became an OS because we are deeply committed with its aims. As a Marketing Agency, confident of these values and principles, we support companies wishing to reporting under the GRI Guidelines.

Our organization is certificated trainer of the GRI methodology, and we believe that it is the most consistent sustainability reporting standards. That is why we want to participate and support eh movement, and to help to make the non financial demonstrations as important as the financial ones.

The IBGC understands reporting both tangible and intangible aspects is a very good corporate governance practice and GRI plays a fundamental role in this aspect.

When Report was founded in 2002, only one company in Brazil published reports abiding by the GRI guidelines: Natura. Searching for information on the GRI and the GRI guidelines was the natural step for an agency conceived to work with sustainability communications.

This year, SANASA has been doing many important actions to develop sustainability in its core business. One of our decisions was to join the Global Compact and to make the Sustainability Reporting – GRI. We realized GRI is an important framework to support us in the discussion about plans and understand our impact in the society and environment. We believe that our company can go a long way to improve the sustainability development of our city, with many important environmental and social problems, like the modern cities. We can be a model for other public companies of Campinas and other the same sector business in our country. We are excited about OS Program because it can help us share information and knowledge with other stakeholders in the world and receive benefits from GRI.

One of the priority directions of our work is promoting CSR in Georgia. In this context our organization is working to promote in Georgia the practice of sustainability reporting in general and GRI reporting framework in particular. For this purpose our organization has translated into Georgian GRI reporting guidelines, Let's Report Template, and the handbook Making the Connection (The GRI Guidelines and the UNGC Communication on Progress. We have organized several working meetings and seminars to sustainability reporting and GRI reporting format. We consider important to support GRI and become its organizational stakeholder.

akzente kommunikation und beratung gmbh	Commercial Services	16/04/2003	http://www.akzente.de/

I personally have been using GRI for a long time and will continue using it in my work with companies - we are keen on promoting GRI as the de facto standard in reporting.

For more than 20 years akzente kommunikation und beratung has provided companies, associations, institutions and ministries with strategic advice on issues related to sustainability and environmental protection. One main focus is the design and the creation of sustainability and corporate responsibility reports. To date, our motivation has been to help shape the dialogue between companies, politics and society. To become an Organisational Stakeholder of GRI was therefore a logical decision for us. Explicitly for two reasons: 1) Only by establishing a worldwide and common framework for sustainability reporting a comparison of the global players' real performance can be achieved. 2) The multi-stakeholder approach, in our opinion, stands for a great opportunity: bringing people of different cultures and backgrounds together to work for an overall aim, and by agreeing on the results, speaking with one voice. This is a communication path which will be trendsetting. Despite our support for the GRI akzente kommunikation und beratung accompanies the whole process of developing the guidelines and the GRI as an organisation also in a critical way. Our aim is to contribute to the development of significant and fundamental criteria which in fact help evaluate and benchmark the performance of companies and industries worldwide – without creating new bureaucracy and higher expenditures.

Bayer AG	Conglomerates	25/10/2004	http://www.bayer.com	Why BAYER became an Organisational Stakeholder The Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) provides a comprehensive guideline for sustainability reporting that we are readily using since several years. The voluntary framework in fact proved to be very helpful and therefore Bayer decided to foster GRI through becoming an Organisational Stakeholder. Bayer would like to share our experience and knowledge on Non-Financial Reporting with others and at the same time having the possibility to learn from others how to improve our reporting. We consider the multi-stakeholder approach the GRI chooses for preparing and updating the guidelines and the aligned documents like sector supplements and technical protocols as exemplary for practising Stakeholder Dialogue. To be an Organisational Stakeholder gives us the possibility of being more actively involved in this multi stakeholder process in order to be more appreciative of the stakeholders' concerns in the area of reporting. At the same time it will give the stakeholders sound information on our motives. We feel confident that this forms the base for fostering acceptance. Bayer is convinced that GRI's impact on Non-Financial reporting will further increase during the next few years and we would like to take the chance and form part of this development through the potentials provided by being an Organisational Stakeholder like taking part in GRI's governance structure and working groups as well.

Being part of GRI Community could help exchange our views and knowledge of sustainability with other global leaders by sharing successful stories. We also hope to help promote the adoption of GRI Standard through our network and reach out to the business communities in Hong Kong and Mainland China in order to encourage a wider adoption of GRI Standard, raise the bar of sustainability reporting and create a greater impact in the region.

- Demonstrate commitment to the GRI standards
- Network with fellow GRI supporters

I have been following GRI standards since the beginning and was one of the industry leaders to push for the standards in Hong Kong. Becoming a GRI community member is long due.

Increase our company exposure and reputation
Show our customer our credibility
Plan to apply for GRI training accreditation

GSG, as an AI enabled independent corporate governance and ESG advisory covering the PRC Mainland and HK stock markets, we advise institutional investors, PE/VC management, and company boards on corporate governance, proxy voting, as well as broader ESG and sustainable investment and compliance issues.

We specifically advise on reporting framework requirements, streamline the data collection process, utilizing a system modeled on global international standards and local regulations. GRI is one of those standards.

There are a couple of reasons that motivated us to apply for a membership of GRI Community. First and foremost, we have been engaged in ESG/Sustainability Reporting services that are provided to listed companies in Hong Kong for many years. We compile and deliver the sustainability reports in accordance with or at least in reference to GRI formats and standards, in order to meet our customers' demands. In recent years, we believe that being in partnership with GRI will not only help us win the faith of our customers, but also receive the latest and useful resources that can help us be better in sustainability reporting; Secondly, we have been in preparation for GRI Certified Training Project for several months. One of the most important criteria is becoming the GRI Community Member. Thus, we chose to become the member in the first place.

With GRI expertise, we would like to help CSR activities in Japanese companies be aligned with global contexts and, thereby, enhance the competitive advantage of Japanese companies while building a better tomorrow.

When my partner company, Sustainavision in the UK and my self, Sustainable Communication Hub (Suscom) in Japan visited Thomas from GRI Training & Coaching Programs Team to discuss reporting situation in Japan last November in 2017, at that time he kindly recommended us to join GOLD community with the information. So we decided to join it. My company, Suscom, is based in Japan and Sustainavision

Ltd. is based in the UK. We are trying to find the gap between Europe and Japan in Sustainability reporting to improve Japanese Sustainability reporting field. So we would like to contribute to GRI GOLD community and also more to raising awareness to Sustainability reporting in Japan.

Based on our commitment and accountability to advancing environmental, social and governance reporting and following the identification of our core material issues based on our CSR policy and strategy, our aspect boundaries, and the prioritization of these, in addition to the feedback obtained through the Bank Audi CSR Committee; we mapped our vision of responsible management and transparent reporting to the GRI G4 guidelines.

Recently, we made considerable progress in relation to our CSR strategy based upon strong foundations of ethics of conduct and integrity. Today, we streamline our practices year after year and focus on important issues to deliver value to our clients, working in close partnership with leading non-profits, to revitalize entrepreneurship and create local economic opportunities. We are coordinating efforts across the Group to ensure that we harmonize our involvement around core CSR issues that make sense to our business.

We remain committed to this course of continuous innovation and improvement, and look to differentiate ourselves by engaging proactively in CSR related issues by focusing to add to our social and financial success through more inclusiveness, ownership and responsibility for our common future. We are dedicated to stay the course, and to reap and share the benefits of this responsible business orientation locally and across the entire Group in the years to come within the guidelines of international best practice as benchmarked through the GRI.

Our motivation to join GRI as an Organizational Stakeholder is various: we wish to support GRI's activities, stay informed and enjoy the benefits offered to Organizational Stakeholders. But most importantly, we want to benchmark and assess Soil & More's sustainability performance, demonstrate how this business influences and is influenced (the impacts of the company), and form a basis to compare its performance within an organization and between different organizations over time. The goal is to provide transparency on the sustainability of Soil & More's activities, but also to help Soil & More to see where its stands and improve its economic, environmental and social performance.

Our organization Supply Chain Information Management bv (SIM bv) is supporting International Retailers like Ahold and Migros with the monitoring of the sustainability performance of their private label and fresh suppliers. We collect and validate the objective evidence that suppliers send to prove that they are actively working on sustainability. All the collected and validated information is related to KPI's that our customers have defined. Those KPI's are strongly related to the content of the GRI and there fore we need to understand better what GRI stands for and how we use knowledge about GRI to improve the service to our clients. We also think that it is going to give us a good platform to connect with other relevant parties.

For VBDO and its members the GRI Guidelines are one of the most important instruments in stimulating sustainability reporting among Dutch listed companies. At the annual shareholder meetings and in dialogues with the 50 largest Dutch listed companies VBDO successfully requested for reporting. We have been requesting information from companies in line with the GRI Guidelines since the very beginning in 1998. GRI-based reporting has helped to ensure the development of quality sustainability reporting practices in the Netherlands. May 2004 Piet Sprengers Director VBDO

 The CSR Agency Other 21/07/2014 <http://www.thecsragency.ro>

As a responsible provider of trusted services, CSR BootIQ is committed to building trust in sustainability as a profession, to sharing knowledge and to be transparent.

CSR BootIQ advocates for human rights, fair trade and equal access to opportunities, and works against corruption in any form.

We strongly believe that a proper sustainability strategy can lead to: better access to investment funds and markets; cost savings; higher productivity; larger sales and profit margins; loyal human resources and customers; improved brand image and reputation; enhanced risk management processes.

We want to be part of the GRI efforts and to support the use of GRI guideline in Romania.

Agency for Social Information Non-Profit / Services 16/06/2004 <http://www.asi.org.ru>

Agency of Social Information (ASI) is an independent non-governmental agency dedicated to strengthen civic initiatives and community partnership in Russia. The agency is committed to promote the ideas of transparency, cooperation and accountability among non-governmental, governmental and business organizations. ASI appreciates the opportunity to become a GRI OS as we consider GRI principals as an instrumental tool for businesses in Russia that declare their adherence to socially responsible behavior.

We help companies on their social responsibility strategy, building it from their own values. Our clients are from multinationals to small enterprises, and from different sectors of activity, and we have developed a methodology to integrate the sustainability values into the business management for all of them. GRI has become a referent when reporting sustainability performance, and it's been of great use for us. T

GRI is an important actor within the field of sustainable development and the GRI guidelines are becoming a growing practice among business actors and organisations. We would like to be part of this development, as a way of learning and updating our own practice and sharing our knowledge. This is in line with our ambition of becoming an internationally recognised spearhead within the sustainability area.

We are active in GRI reporting in Sweden and see the stakeholder process as a natural and necessary development step. We are interested in learning and sharing knowledge to increase the use of the GRI.

Sustainability reporting is a core service for us as consultants. To be a member of OS feels like a natural step for us. We hope that we can support GRI in their work with developing the guidelines.

We have been applying the GRI in our work with clients since 2003.

We would like to join the GRI as an OS because we believe that the GRI is the standard for ESG reporting and we would like to be a part of bringing GRI into the mainstream (especially in the US where it is lacking) and helping to further solidify its place as the de-facto standard.

Graphic Packaging International views a membership with GRI as a way to stay connected to a well respected standard. The company has represented our sustainability data by referencing to GRI and we look to expand our reporting in the future.

Access to Standards education

Harbor provides sustainability consulting to companies across the globe. We routinely recommend reporting in accordance with GRI standards and want to be a part of development and promotion of these standards. We would also like to become a GRI Certified Trainer.

We feel that joining GRI as an Organization Stakeholder will provide us with regular updates on industry developments, therefore enhancing our network and increasing our credibility.
