GRI is hosting a series of Materiality Roundtables to discuss common challenges related to the identification and integration of material ESG information into corporate reporting. The Roundtable Series is convened by GRI, Yale University and WBCSD (World Business Council for Sustainable Development). The Roundtables are designed to encourage international and interdisciplinary discussions between leading reporting companies with a special focus on the food sector. If you work within a company which has at least two years of sustainability reporting experience and you are from the food and agricultural sector, we invite you to join the Roundtable Series.

1. JOIN THE PEER-LEARNING NETWORK
   - Exchange best practices with peers from your sector and find answers to common challenges
   - Explore ways in which companies can integrate materiality into their reporting strategies and internal processes

2. ENHANCE YOUR ESG DISCLOSURE PRACTICES
   - Increase your understanding of sustainability reporting and disclosure principles and processes, especially materiality
   - Explore the key areas that impact on sustainability reporting with GRI, Yale, WBCSD and peers from your sector

3. PROFILE YOUR ORGANIZATION
   - Shape the future of reporting in the food sector
   - Work with GRI, Yale University and WBCSD to advance sustainability reporting and disclosure for more effective decision making
The Program 2017-2018

The Materiality Roundtable Series offers the opportunity to join two in person meetings and two online discussions. The program will begin in the fall of 2017 and continue into the spring of 2018. The goal is for reporters in the food and agriculture sectors to reflect on the concept of materiality assessment and how the priorities for reporting are determined. We will explore ways in which companies can integrate materiality into their reporting strategies and internal processes. The last Roundtable will foster a conversation between the participants and engaged investors, with the objective of addressing expectations and challenges related to sustainability disclosures.

Join the Materiality Roundtable Series

GRI, Yale University and WBCSD invite companies ready to shape the future of reporting in the food sector to join the Roundtable Series, if they fulfill the following criteria:

- Have a robust experience in sustainability reporting (at least two years of reporting experience), including through mainstream financial reports
- Your organization is from the food and agriculture sector.

Participants

- Each organization can bring up to three colleagues (preferably CFO, investor relations team and CSR data provider). All participants must be at mid management level or higher.

Participation fee

- The program is free of charge*.
  *Participating organizations will cover their accommodation and transport costs for the face to face events.

GET IN TOUCH!

If you are interested in joining this unique program working to enhance the application of materiality for better decision-making and reporting, get in touch!

Francesca Palamidessi
Senior Coordinator,
Corporate and Stakeholder Engagement

GET IN TOUCH

+31 (0)20 5310010
palamidessi@globalreporting.org

---

RANGE TABLE I

Materiality and the food sector – the corporate perspective

In person, with possibility to join online.

Amsterdam
17 Nov 2017

---

ONLINE SESSION

How can CSOs and CFOs engage in a robust materiality assessment of ESG issues?

Online
10 January 2018

---

LIVE & ONLINE SESSION

Exploring a company-wide reporting strategy

Singapore
31 January 2018

---

FINAL ROUNDTABLE

Materiality and the food sector – bringing together the views of reporters and investors

In person, with possibility to join online.
New Haven, USA
13 March 2018